GEMINI 78

Graduation is over and now you have tomorrow to contend with. But wait, your memories of Lehman still linger with you. Like a breath of a warm spring wind these memories begin to melt and you find yourself back at Lehman.

With these thoughts comes to mind GEMINI. For this word means TOGETHERNESS, LOVE, SHARING with one another and BROTHERHOOD. We at Lehman hope you can carry this concept of GEMINI and live with its meaning.

THE NIGHT NEW YORK CITY DIED— AND EVERYTHING ELSE

I remember vividly that hot sticky night. I could feel the sweat slowly oozing down my back, some of it sticking to my tee shirt, the rest being sopped up by the waist of my pants leaving them damp and cool against my skin. The air conditioner was on and the TV and the entire house was aglow. A house full of people relying on technology for comfort and entertainment. I pulled off my tee shirt, and my pants, relaxing in front of the air conditioner, while turning it from "Low" to a more comfortable "High." I remember being angry at the heat. But then my anger subsided as the air conditioner stirred the stagnant air. The air made contact with the sweat on my body making everything cool. Ah, this was life, I thought, but quite abruptly, and I might add rudely, it ended. Yes, not a sound save for a quiet "purr"—which I might've imagined, and everything went dead. At first I thought it was some kind of joke played by a mischievous cousin who found a perverted pleasure in making other lives uncomfortable as possible. But she was sitting next to me, and then I happened to look out the window and I was shocked as my city eyes tried vainly to adjust to the darkness. The entire city was in darkness. To me the mere idea that the greatest city in the world could succumb to a human weakness as "BLACKOUT" was appalling.

I sat there indignant and very hot. This just could not happen. It was below the dignity of New York City. What caused it was of no concern to me. All I could think of then was that the damn fan wasn't working and tonight I would miss Charlie's Angels. Funny, I hated that show. Nothing is badly missed as something absent. I must remember to enter that in my journal. Never mind it being an old proverb rephrased. In heat like this one's mind isn't exactly the freshest.

I finally decided to give up my indignant attitude. I concluded that humanity must be able to survive without technology. They did it in the dark ages, and if they could do it, so could I! I took action. I would take a shower to cool off. I moved with the dexterity of a giant Hippopotamus shrugging its way across a swamp, as I tried to make my way from the bedroom to the bathroom. It seemed funny to me that a blind man survives in perpetual darkness by relying on his senses. Instinct and touch guides his safety. A person with sight does not have this sixth sense called instinct as fully developed but with practice he could make do. Here was the rest of humankind with eyesight and imagination revolving around technology.

Two hours later the air conditioner still wasn't functioning, or the TV, nor was there light in the house save for two flickering candles—one in the kitchen and the other in the bedroom. I looked out the window again. This time my eyes found something. The buildings were black and silhouetted against the gray sky. Here the difference in the building sizes lent to a sinister mood only Dickens could have created in one of his fanciful stories. Here and there I noticed amber colored lights glowing in some windows like cat's eyes would show in total darkness. The sound of sirens travelled swiftly through the night. By then I had accustomed myself to the thought that even the best of us fail at times. New York City was paralyzed without this essential electricity. Nothing worked. Boy, I felt like a martyr that night. I felt like hauling myself to one of the TV antenaes on top of the buildings that gave the illusion of a cross high and dignified in the darkness, and screaming to the whole of New York. "YOU HAVE BUILT YOURSELF A FRANKENSTEIN. THIS THING, THIS TECHNOLOGY THAT YOU HAVE NURTURED HAS TURNED ON YOU, HAS ABANDONED YOU. HEED MY WORD NEW YORKERS, IT IS TIME FOR A NEW BEGINNING. WE MUST NOT PLACE ALL OUR RESPONSIBILITIES ON THIS "FRANKENSTEIN." Of course there are bound to be a few loud mouths who would holler back obscenities. No real martyr stands without opposition. It is something they learn to expect.

I sighed a deep sigh remembering Charlie's Angels. This philosophy thinking was tiring. I needed the TV set badly. I didn't have to think when I was looking at T.V. All one had to do was sit back and stare at the TV and it did your thinking and acted as your imagination. Could you imagine Starsky and Hutch going to the library, discussing classical music, or the ballet? of course not! Why? Because television will not porject this insanity. It is unspeakable. One thing I was sure of: if this electricity ever came back, I'd vow never to criticize or miss another episode of Charlie's Angels.

THOUGHTS OF US

Thoughts of us
kept drifting thru my mind of what we were of what we are of what we will become and I thought of all the stories passed down from generation to generation of Black pride of Black beauty and I cried my sorrow ran deep because the unity of yesterday is no more the kind of togetherness that got us the right to sit anywhere in a bus and eat where we choose is asleep when the opportunity arose some of us didn't hesitate to hurt our brothers and sisters to destroy their lives by tearing apart what had taken years to build I felt shame for the people who stole because their deeds help to tarnish the beauty of my people a beauty that I take pride in a beauty I want others to admire a beauty I want to live on.

by Josephine Braithwaite

As I sat listening to the haunting love song I got the urge to write something smooth and soft to roll off the tongue something sweet and gentle like I felt at that moment a piece of magic that would soar like the singer's lilting voice to reach a thrilling climax and gradually return to earth with the mildness of a summer breeze

Guys
I'll tell you the truth I'm through with guys cause all they do is tell you lies.
They break your heart
They make you cry They make you almost want to die.
The way they treat you is a sin.
Wow! Dig that Guy

THE RESTAURANT SEEMED DESERTED

It was a pretty classy place.
I heard the food was good,
the prices reasonable.

I figured I'd go there straight from work.

The train pulled into the crowded station.

I got off, went upstairs, Walked three blocks left,
two blocks right,
and went inside.

I walked into the middle of the room and sat on the box that was placed beside a bigger box with an empty candle holder on it.

The floor seemed dusty.
I waved to the spider that came down from the one dim lightbulb in the entire place, straightened my tie, and waited for service.

after my 95th birthday
I said to myself:
"Funny, the restaurant seems deserted."

Death Dance

She sold her soul
To the one below,
But she tried to break the promise
So a hot rain fell From the bowels of hell,
As he threw a curse upon her.

She screamed as she heard His justifying word,
Her heart was gripped in fear,
She trembled in her knees,
And kept begging him "please"
But a curse is all she could hear.

"You shall dance all day,
You shall dance all night,
Not a moment will you stop.
This is how you shall pay, You'll dance your life away,
You will keep it up until you drop."

As he vanished, her head Began to spin,
She said to herself,
"I am surely done in"
As a wretched demon
Rose from below,
To be her partner
In her dance of death.

She looked around
And found herself
In a dancing hall
With hideous elves
Who played the drums and strings and vibes
With souless hearts
And piercing eyes.

She whirled across the Ballroom floor,
Until she could not Dance anymore,
But the evil demon,
He kept dancing strong,
He dipped and dived
And pulled her along.

The music raced
In high speed song,
The elves, they started To dance along,
Her pounding heart
Was heard through the room,
She knew these last steps
Would be her doom,
With one last breath
She screamed and cried, Death squeezed her heart
She fell and died.

Dip, Die, Trying To Survive

Dip, Die, socialize, trying to make you all realize, that we are bonofied to electrofie to satisfie them.

The burning desire to booggie you'all, the booggie you'all

What's up with the man that is physically mature, I mean a true athlete.
A man that has all the females eating right out of the palms of his hands.

But . . .

What about the man who has a lot more. A man who is Aesthete.
I mean a man that is sensitive to the beauty that most of his counter parts will never awaken to.

This is the kind of man that will make you clap your hands and stomp your feet and a move to the funky beat, you will feel so good that you'll open the door and kick off your shoes and break.

He's the kind of guy that's glad to see you in this mood, because you and him are one of a kind.

He'll wreck your mind, He'll do it to you anytime.
He'll put a rocket in your pocket, and take you for a ride to the spaces of your mind.

TWILIGHT

Pleasant memories come to mind whenever Twilight
falls.

There is something of a miracle in the knowledge that one day is ending, that a new one might beg

I speak to you sage,
of Life,
and my thoughts embrace the entire world.

You speak to me
sage,
of Wisdom,
and your thoughts embrace the entire Universe.

But the girl-child amidst the flowers down by the stream speaks not at all.

You and I,
sage,
have not found THE truth
but A Truth.

We shall learn of Life and Wisdom through the children.

For their thoughts go past the earth and the Universe and embrace the heart of God.

WASHROOM

The train thundered by and created a light breeze on the faces of those who had missed it. Charlie cursed under his breath, and slowed his run down to a walk. He proceeded to the subway men's room.

The stench was awful and the place was crawling with roaches. He washed his hands and was reaching for a towel when he heard a raspy voice say,

"Hey buddy, got a dime?"

Charlie turned around to see a disheveled figure with cold, piercing, but familiar eyes. Charlie sensed danger and said,

"No, I'm afraid I don't."

The man eased a hunting knife from a sheath at his waistline.

"Okay buddy, let's see what you do have. Let's see your wallet."

Charlie felt a sudden aloneness. The ceiling seemed to be rising, the walls were getting wider. Every sound echoed. There was just Charlie and the knife wielder.

But something about the mugger haunted Charlie. The Tired, raspy voice, the grubby face, but most of all, the eyes. He swept his memory to come up with an answer. As he reached for his wallet, a name hit him.

"Aren't you Frankie Dell?"

"No, man I ain't Frankie Dell. Now hand it over."

"Come on, you've got to be."

"No ––no, that ain't my name. Come on, before I waste you.

Charlie persisted.

"It's me, Charlie Royal."

The mugger lowered the blade from Charlie's throat.

"Yea, I remember you. You used to live on Corner street, eh?"

A flow of relief hit Charlie. The two men exchanged warm handshakes.

"So what have you been doing with yourself Charlie?"

Charlie replied, "Oh, I've got a job over on Wall Street, a good wife, two kids, your average working stiff's life. What's been happening with you?"

"As you can see I'm self employed. I've been drifting around. Whenever I need a buck I just make a hit. Hey, remember that bank job over on Salsa Street? That was me. Slick, eh? Cops don't have a clue. I baffled 'em all."

Charlie was feeling uncomfortable talking to Frankie. His old friend was a thief and a robber. His eyes started to wander as he listened to Frankie's bragging. He was looking for a way out. The walls were closing in. Then he heard the train pulling in.

"Hey, it was nice talking to you Frankie. I think I hear my train coming. I better get going. Can't keep the little woman waiting you know."

Frankie took hold of Charlie's arm, "Charlie, I got a problem. You see, buddy, I can't let you go. You know who I am now. You might rat on me, not intentionally of course. I can't risk that. You understand, don't you?"

Fame and Fortune (in memory of Freddie Prinze)

He had been dreaming of it since he was a youngster Fame and fortune were all he desired.
Hustling 'round the clubs of New York Displaying his ethnic humor Success came overnight at age nineteen.
He seemed able to cope with instant stardom His eyes always sparkled and were mischievious On television he was loved and respected.
Harboring a self-destructive nature
He was unable to cope
To the world he was a clown
To his friends he was a pretender Alone, he was frightened
He turned to pills to relieve his anxieties
He had an obsession with death
A gun seemed to be the only way out For him from his misery
The senseless act of a child who never grew up Desperately reaching out for help

MEN—WOMEN

Soldiers Wanted.

As you know, we need good, young people who want to serve their country. We need some to serve it in the United States Army.

We may not have a draft. But we still have a need.

Army life is not for everyone. You may get up early in the morning, work hard all day, and hit the sack, dog-tired, long after the sun has disappeared.

But for those who are up to the discipline Army life demands, the rewards are great. Job training. Good pay. Travel. In-service educational opportunities. And a chance to grow as an individual.

If you're interested, give us a call. We think you'll be a better person for it.

Call Sgt. Santiago Galarza 792-8300

To the graduating class of 1978 We share your joy and wish to entend our congratulations to you and your families
